

Thomas D. Frisbie, Jr., a native of the Cleveland, Ohio area has been a coach, a professional, a student and a volunteer at all levels of informal and professional recreation including extensive administrative experience in the sport of soccer. He has worked for Ohio Youth Soccer Association North, the United States Soccer Federation in the National Teams Department, the National Soccer Coaches Association of America and most recently the Michigan State Youth Soccer Association.

After moving to Michigan, Tom began working as a facility manager at a multi-sport recreational facility specializing in soccer. After a brief stint in the athletic department at Wayne State University in Detroit, he began working as the Marketing Manager for the Michigan State Youth Soccer Association. Less than a year later he was appointed as the Executive Director for MSYSA. During his time with MSYSA, he and his staff implemented one of the most comprehensive risk management programs in US Youth Soccer. He also helped to create and facilitate two new recreational tournaments in areas of the state previously underrepresented by MSYSA. During his time as the Executive Director at MSYSA, he and his staff worked to forge partnerships with sister governing bodies in Michigan such as the Michigan High School Athletic Association, the Michigan Recreation and Park Association, and Special Olympics Michigan.

Tom has an undergraduate degree in Leisure Studies from Kent State University and a master's degree in Athletic Administration from Wayne State University in Detroit, Michigan.
